

Cookware — Ovenware for use in traditional domestic ovens

ICS 97.040.60

National foreword

This British Standard is the UK implementation of EN 13834:2007+A1:2009. It supersedes BS EN 13834:2007 which is withdrawn.

The start and finish of text introduced or altered by amendment is indicated in the text by tags. Tags indicating changes to CEN text carry the number of the CEN amendment. For example, text altered by CEN amendment A1 is indicated by A1 A1.

The UK participation in its preparation was entrusted to Technical Committee CW/9, Cooking and catering containers.

A list of organizations represented on this committee can be obtained on request to its secretary.

Subclause 6.1.7 introduces a method for determining thermal shock resistance which differs from the method defined in BS EN 1183:1997, Subclause 6.3. The UK committee considers that the test methods for determining thermal shock and thermal shock endurance contained within BS EN 1183:1997 are the most appropriate to use for evaluating the suitability of brittle materials, for example glass, glass-ceramics intended for use in ovens or as tableware.

The committee would like to recommend that articles designated by suppliers as “ovenware”, “oven-proof”, “oven-safe”, “oven to tableware ware” or any other similar description, which suggests that the articles can be safely used in an oven, should have a thermal shock endurance, Δt_{50} , of not less than 150 °C.

This publication does not purport to include all the necessary provisions of a contract. Users are responsible for its correct application.
